As a professional wood turner I earn my living from teaching, demonstrating, writing for publications, producing decorative turned wood art and turning batches of spindles for furniture makers, cabinet makers, joiners and builders.

I have demonstrated at symposiums in South Africa and America as well as many clubs in the UK and Ireland. I also write for The Woodturning Magazine which is read in over sixty countries.

The routine and discipline of spindle work is rewarding; it allows me to think freely about ideas that may one day become finished pieces. Working on decorative pieces makes time irrelevant – the finished product has to be right if not it just becomes firewood. Production turning is very different where every minute counts.

The workshop below is where I work and teach. Some days it's a studio other days I just call it my shed – it is my part of the world where I go to escape.

TEACHING

For those individuals who are interested in the various aspects of woodturning I teach one to one in a private well equipped and insured workshop one to five day courses are available.

I teach people who have never stepped into a workshop before and wish to try woodturning before investing in tools and equipment.

I teach intermediate and advanced turners or those wanting to take a new direction with their work.

I also run specialist decorating courses.

If the type of course you require is not mentioned here please contact me to discuss your needs and we will tailor a program to suit you. If you would like details of individual courses and prices, these can be e-mailed.

Accommodation

An excellent B&B is available opposite the workshop at Church farm B&B.

DEMONSTRATIONS

Over recent years I have given many demonstrations to woodturning clubs all over the country. I have also travelled to South Africa, the USA and Ireland to demonstrate. I have a vast knowledge in many aspects of woodturning and can demonstrate to almost anybody.

As a regular writer for Woodturning magazine you can see the range of subjects I have covered over the last three years.

I am a hand turner delivering high quality hand turned products. I prefer to turn small to medium batches from clients' own wood – this allows the client control over the quality of the work.

I endeavor to turn work around quickly and efficiently and charge an average time for each job and at a fare price.

If an urgent project is needed I always do my best to meet the deadline.

If you are a small furniture maker and only require a small order e.g. two spindles /door knobs turned on an occasional basis please give me a call – the contact details are at the foot of this page.

Call me on 01603 710722 or scroll down for more contact details.

During the years I have been creating lathe turned objects there has been a change to what is seen as acceptable to the woodturning community and often the debate Art or Craft comes to the fore – a subject I choose to abstain from.

This page shows my recent work made to satisfy my own need to be creative and produce something which is pleasing to the eye and innovative whilst also allowing me to evolve further without being restricted within the boundaries of pure turned wood.
